

ABSTRACT WATERCOLOR ART

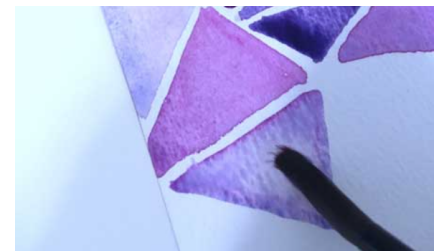

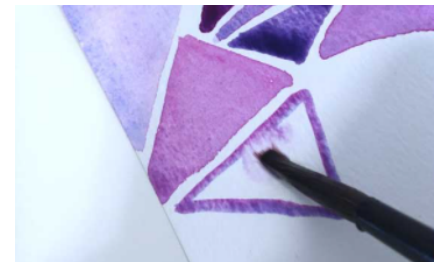

There are no rules with this easy watercolor painting! Every triangle can be a different color or you can choose a hue of colors to stick with. This example uses a range of blues and purples.

YOU WILL NEED:

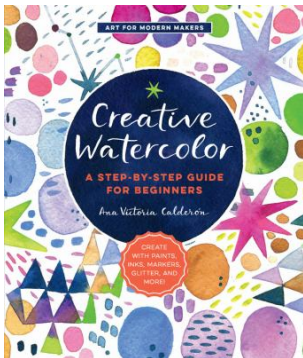

- Paintbrush
- Watercolor palette
- Watercolor paper
- a cup of clean water and a cup of water to rinse your brush between colors
- a piece of paper to test the colors

INSTRUCTIONS:

- Decide what color(s) you would like to use.
- Dip your paintbrush into your clean water and activate the paint color you want to use.
- Using the lid as a mixing palette, try mixing different shades until you get colors you like. Test them on a piece of paper to see if they're the color you want to use.
- No need to sketch anything! Start by painting a single triangle. Paint the outline of the triangle then while the paint is still wet, pull the paint to the inside to fill the outline. Add more color as needed. This technique will create some variation of color depth and visual interest.
- Start painting triangles around that first one to create a repeated pattern of triangles. Vary the size and angles of each one to help get a random look.

CHECK ME OUT:

Creative Watercolor: a step-by-step guide for beginners
by Ana Victoria Calderon

Playing with Paints - Watercolor: 100 Prompts, Projects and Playful Activities
by Sara Funduk